BANANA STICKER PEEL & PLAY

Collector's Edition

A Brief History of Dole

Since its inception in 1899 with the Vaccaro Brothers and Salvador D'Antoni, the legacy of Dole's banana business has been marked by pioneering innovations, steadfast community support, and a commitment to sustainable farming practices. Throughout its history, Dole has achieved numerous milestones, including the introduction of refrigerated ships in the early 20th century, revolutionizing banana transportation by boxing fruit and leading efforts in organic production.

Dole has also been at the forefront of sustainable farming practices, implementing integrated pest and disease management, soil conservation techniques, and water management programs and maintained a strong dedication to supporting its communities through employee wellness programs, education, healthcare, and social infrastructures.

We invite you to celebrate with us as Dole recognizes its 125th anniversary in bananas and continues to evolve and innovate its legacy as a leader in the industry remaining firmly rooted in a century-and-a-quarter-long commitment to excellence, sustainability, and community empowerment.

CELEBRATE THE JOURNEY

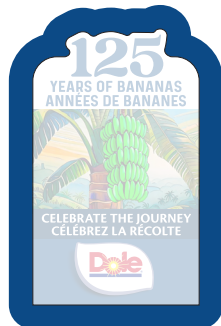

FUN FACTS:

- Some horticulturists suspect that the banana was the earth's first fruit!
- Bananas were officially introduced to the American public at the 1876 Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition. Each banana was wrapped in foil and sold for 10 cents.

"POWER TO THE PEEL"

CELEBRATE THE PEOPLE

FUN FACT:

Banana plants require intensive, individual care from Dole Bananeros. Stems are ready for harvest after about 9-months, averaging 150-200 fingers and weighing 85 to 100 pounds each. It takes two people to harvest one stem of bananas. One worker nicks the stalk with a machete, and another worker catches it on his shoulder. He wears a thick, comfortable cushion on his shoulder to soften the heavy load and protect the bananas from getting bruised.
